IRELAND THE OUTPOST (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Ireland the Outpost The essay that follows is based on two lectures given in the summer school of University College, Aberystwyth, in 1917, and on a lecture to the Irish Geographical Association in Dublin in 1919. It is an attempt to regard Ireland as the outpost of a larger region, from which her people and her civilization have been derived in successive and overlapping waves. The study of natural surroundings, and of their action on various groups of organisms, is the true field of the geographer, who hopes in time to break the barrier that has been set in university courses between the sciences and the arts. Our educational systems have long been controlled by the left, right, left, right of classical and mathematical drill-sergeants, and much that is intensely human has remained foreign to ourselves. A realization of the physical structure of Ireland, and of her position as the outpost of Eurasia, may lead to a wider comprehension, not only of the land, but of its complex population. The geographer, borrows from the geologist, and he owes an equal debt to the anthropologist and the historian. However localized his theme may be, he must, through intercourse and travel, maintain his outlook on the larger world. The sections of this essay are not intended to furnish a continuous history of the outpost; they illustrate from various points of view, now bounded by a territorial horizon and now of wider scope, the influence of geographic conditions on the current of affairs in Ireland.
