Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Colorado Springs Public Schools: Course of Study Handwriting The revision of the course of study in the elementary schools of Colorado Springs was begun under the direction of Superintendent R. C. Hill and is a product of the co-operative effort of the teachers, principals, and directors. The provisional draft was the work of committees representing every department in the schools. Upon these committees rested the responsibility of gathering materials for the tentative course, reformulating in the light of experience and submitting the work as here presented. There is a considerable diversity of opinion as to what should constitute a course of study. The following criteria taken from the report of the National Joint Committee on the Reorganization of English because they represent the consensus of opinion of administrators and classroom teachers from Maine to California were placed in the hands of the various committees as a modus operandi: 1. Simplicity of standards such that their observance can become habitual to both teacher and pupil. 2. Almost absolute uniformity in their enforcement by all teachers of the school. 3. That full definite syllabi, rich in specific details, be prepared and printed for the guidance of teachers, and that representative teachers of various grades be consulted in the preparation of such syllabi. 4. That the ground to be covered in each phase of the subject be carefully delimited. 5. A minimum amount to be accomplished each term. 6. A definite statement of attainment for each grade. 7. Work can be assigned to a particular grade only on the assumption that the work indicated for preceding grades has been done. 8. In all subjects, all papers that are...
