Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Observer and Record of Agriculture, Science and Art, Vol. 1 As soon as dung begins to decompose it throws off its volatile parts, which are the most volatile and most efficient. Dung which has fermented, so as to become a mere soft cohesive mass, has generally lost from one third to one half of its most useful constituent elements. It evidently should be applied as soon as fermentation begins, that it may exert its full action upon the plant, and lose none of its nutritive powers. It would be easy to adduce a multitude of other instances of the same kind; but sufficient I trust has been said to prove that the connection of chemistry with agriculture is not founded on mere vague speculation, but (that it offers principles which ought to be understood and followed, and which in their progression and ultimate results, can hardly fail to be highly beneficial to the community. A view of the objects in this course of lectures, and of the manner in which they are to be treated,...
