Burns in upper annandale. Sweet fa s the eve on Craigieburn, And blythe awakes the morrow. --Burns. when Burns wandered in Upper Annandale the minister of Moffat Parish Kirk was Mr Alexander Brown. Brown was a character in his way; a broad-minded and kindly man. Burns must have known him well. But though he spared few ministers whom he came across, he did not say a word of the Moffat minister. When Burns came here the Parish Kirk still stood in the centre of the Kirkyard. The ruins are there still. It is a very interesting old kirk, even if it was of no great architectural beauty. In it were imprisoned the eighty poor covenanters on that dismal November night. In it was baptised, in 1775, Jean Lorimer, daughter of Lorimer of Craigieburn, the lassie wi the lint-white locks, who inspired...
